

County Attorney To Prosecute Morals Case

Steven L. Perry, 18, 162 Oak St. Midvale, Utah and Clayton Simonds, 18, of the same address, along with James D. Boggess, 18, of 7618 South 7th East, Salt Lake City are being charged with statutory rape and will appear in District Court March 17th at Heber City.

The charge grew out of a case involving three Summit County girls ages 16, 16 and, 14. The three men standing trial were arrested Feb. 26th by Park City police after police and sheriffs officers were alerted by parents of one of the sixteen year old girls. The girl who alerted her parents had run for 1½ miles on the snow crust to her home. During the time the girl was running home it is alleged by the state that the three men left Summit County by auto and stopped at a point near Keetley, Utah, where the crime took place. After the crime was committed the three men took the two young girls back to the junction near "Pop Jenks" at Park City and pushed the girls from the auto. The men were arrested before they got a block away from the Junction.

The complaints charging the three men with statutory rape was signed by Sheriff Eugene Payne. Justice Archie D. Buys set bail at $2,000 or $4,000 property each, and to date all of the alleged sex offenders are still in the Wasatch County jail unable to raise bail.

"We intend to prescute these morals cases to the limit. These men who are chasing after teenage girls and committing offenses, are going to stop or go the penitentiary," said County Attorney L. C. Montgomery.

According to Sheriff Payne James Boggess had been released from Salt Lake County jail Feb. 25th, 1950 after serving 6 months in jail for assaulting a ten-age girl going home from Mutual on August 3, 1949 in Salt Lake County. Mr. Simonds and Mr. Perry have also been in juvenile court for sex offenses during the time they were 17 years of age, according to Sheriff Payne.

THE APPEAL will be conducted under the slogan: "One Hour of Sharing," and will be simultaneously in all cooperating churches as part of the reworship of the day.

Church World Service, which is conducting the campaign, is an overseas relief agency of 23 cooperating Protestant and Eastern Orthodox church bodies. In addition to the denominations affiliated with it, it is supported by the following interdenominational agencies:

Federal Council of Churches, Christ in America, Foreign Missions Conference of North America, American Committee of World Council of Churches, and United Council of Church Women.

These affiliated organizations understand better than perhaps any other organization can the need of relief and reconstruction overseas. That so many millions of helpless people may be helped, that they can be given new hope for the future, is one of the chief goals of these many organizations.

Last year, Church World Service shipped materials amounting to more than eight million dollars to 50 foreign countries. These shipments included about 24 million pounds of farm products, clothing, bedding, medicines, hospital equipment and miscellaneous items.

But Church World Service knows that more, much more is needed. It is for that reason that the unified campaign of "One Great Hour of Sharing" is to be conducted so that all who wish to may have their hand in the organization's humanitarian work.

PADUCAH: War Capital?

The city of Paducah, Ky., is famous as the birthplace of Andrew Jackson and the home of Vice-President Barkley, but for most of its history, it was known for something else, wasn't any too happy about a new honor which might come to it.

The city had been proposed by Rep. John Rankin (D., Tenn.) as the United States' secondary war capital in the event of war.

The representative's proposal met with definitely mixed feelings. The most frequently heard protest was, "Why do they want to make Paducah? We've always lived quietly and peacefully, and we like to continue living that way."

SEVERAL PADUCAHANS got a lot of humor out of Rankin's suggestion that one reason Paducah should be the war capital is that "it is close to Mammoth cave." Paducah
